

This is a great discussion and depiction for kids to see and label their behaviors, and to discuss what they feel would be supportive to them at each level. I have also had them draw a mountain and list supportive song lyrics that go along with each level. Sometimes it can be interesting to see what type of song (happy, sad, angry) relates to their emotions and if these may be the opposite of what you would expect equates to that behavior!

